Is your aluminum door closer becoming a liquid asset?

[You need cast iron.]

The new 1260 closer. Cast iron durability that gives a whole new meaning to being left high and dry.

A leaky closer is not just an eyesore, it could be a liability. That's because a closer that's leaking oil won't control door closing properly. Cast iron has a naturally high graphite content that will actually lubricate the piston, ensuring lasting performance with no leaks.

Introducing the perfect mix of performance and durability.

Only LCN builds cast iron closers that can stand up to the kind of wear and tear that leave typical aluminum closers feeling drained.
